

While enroute to the practice recovery area, final touches are put on the simulated Apollo Module (lower, left). After the destination is reached, the whaleboat crew is lowered into the water (above, center) while the men of UDT 12 prepare their gear (above) and receive a last-minute briefing (below) before entering the water for the first practice run.

