

JUST FOR THE RECORD - If Spencer Burnett, SA, of S-2 division (left) and J. Hannon, QM1, from O-G division have been accused of telling you fish stories, it's no tale fellas, as you can see by their smiling faces. These boys were among the lucky ones who have been fishing off the Bennington every night hoping for that big catch. Hannon experienced the thrill of an expert fisherman when he landed a 30-lb. tarpon, and last week Burnett snared a vicious 21-lb., 40-inch barracuda.

ship with many items of interest for their homes and art collections. The unusual hand-carved mahogany heads were a typical example of the artwork which has made Haiti a center of the primitive art field.

Since the Big Ben will return to the states soon most of the crew will never again see the Isle of Haiti. But they will not forget its mysterious voodoo customs and "picture-postcard" appearance.

Now 'Hair' This: VA Supplying Free Toupees

NEW YORK (APPS) - When it comes to a sensitive subject like bald-headedness, the Veterans Administration doesn't split hairs.

A VA release points out that since the end of WWII it has been providing toupees for ex-servicemen "who lost their hair while in active service through combat, illness or accident."

One delighted chief who admitted he hadn't bothered to buy a comb in years remarked enthusiastically: "Why, this will change the whole complexion of my home life. Right now, my wife says I'm a shining example of why every man should wear a toupee."

A self-composed young private with thinning locks pointed upward and declared "When this all goes, I may switch to another color."

But if you intend to take advantage of this opportunity, act now. The VA may run out of your size.

Workers Needed
