

WHAT IT IS--Hong Kong is one of the great vacation cities of the world, noted mainly for its scenic beauty, shopping facilities and (except for the summer rainy season) delightful climate.

Hong Kong is a Colony of Great Britain consisting of three main areas: the Island (occupied in 1841); the Kowloon Peninsula (ceded in 1861); and the New Territories (leased from China in 1898 for a period of 99 years). The Island of Hong Kong is about 30 square miles; Kowloon 3 square miles and the New Territories, a rural area of about 350 square miles.

The total population approaches 3,000,000, making the area one of the most densely populated in the world. The majority is Chinese, great numbers of whom escaped to Hong Kong after the Communist occupation of the Chinese mainland in 1949. Minority population groups include British, Portuguese and Americans. Worldwide business and diplomatic activities have brought representatives from all of the major nations of the world, making Hong Kong truly cosmopolitan.
