Cartoon Contest

Got something funny you want everybody to know about and which perhaps may win a prize?

Then put it down on paper in form of a comic cartoon and submit it to the Ninth All-Navy Comic Cartoon contest recently announced by the Bureau of Naval Personnel.

The contest is open to all naval personnel on active duty and their dependents.

Comic cartoons must be either gag or situation with a navy theme or background, in good taste, and must be suitable for general use.

A contestant may enter as many cartoons as desired but must be in black ink on 8x10 1/2 inch white paper or illustrated board. Each entry must also have certain statements and information securely attached to the picture. These statements and information can be obtained from the Public Information Office.

All entries submitted become the property of the Department of the Navy for use as desired and will not be returned.

The Bureau will furnish awards to be forwarded to the respective commanding officers for presentation to the first five place winners. Winning cartoons will be published in "All Hands" with suitable notations made in the "Special Services Newsletter."

All entries submitted must reach the Chief of Naval Personnel by 1 June 1964.
