

With the mock module in position to be swung over on Bennington's number three elevator (above), the recovery is complete, and the B & A Crane proceeds to lower it back into the water to give the USS Carpenter (DD-825), the secondary recovery ship, a trial run.

